

A photograph of two snakes, possibly green tree snakes, in a lush, green jungle environment. Both snakes have their mouths wide open, showing their pinkish-purple interiors. They are coiled around a mossy branch. The background is filled with out-of-focus green leaves and branches, creating a dense, naturalistic setting. The lighting is soft, highlighting the texture of the snakes' scales and the vibrant green of the foliage.

Gods Snake:

Tombs of the Gods Kyle Weyburne,2023-07-06 We've completely misunderstood the purpose of the pyramids. They weren't built primarily as tombs; instead, they were intended to be used by Pharaoh while he was still alive. In very ancient times, the king was only allowed to rule for 30 years, then he'd be ritually killed. They didn't want an old man in charge. One day a Pharaoh was nearing his 30th year and decided he didn't want to die, so he came up with a set of rituals that would enable him to live on. It was called Heb Sed. This sacred ceremony was more than just a life saver; though it also enabled the king to merge with the Sun god. After death, Egyptian kings were believed to board the Sun boat, where they would shine down on their subjects for all eternity. However, many things could go awry in this process, particularly under the eyes of a successor. What if they bungled the funeral? What if they were a rival? Heb Sed enabled all this to occur while the king was still alive, so that he could preside over proceedings, ensuring its success. And the bonus of being able to do this while alive is that some part of the Pharaoh would board the Sun boat, and in doing so, the king would become a divinity; the Pharaoh became a living God-king. But all this could only happen if they built a strange pyramid-shaped structure to enable this potent magic to take place. So they built pyramids, and they got bigger and more magnificent with the passing of each King. This madness came to a head with Pharaoh Snefru, who built two massive pyramids, the two biggest man-made structures in the World. How do you outdo this? While his son Khufu only managed to build one pyramid, it was the most impressive structure ever built by humans. Still, it is in my book. And yes, it might have functioned as his tomb, although Strabo and Diodorus swear black and blue that it wasn't; however, it was entirely geared to the Sun god, as you will find out; it was entirely geared for the King's Heb Sed. This book is the sequel to Architecture of Ra, but can be read independently of it. It also delves into the myths of Egypt, as well as those of other cultures: Jason the Argonauts, Icarus, Jonah, Thor, Hercules. I don't like calling these stories myths because they actually belonged to living religions, and to make that grade, the stories had to include information seminal to that culture. And if the texts contain this knowledge, then so did their religious buildings. The knowledge encoded in Egyptian legends is also encoded in their pyramids.

Co-wives and Calabashes Sally Price,2025-10-01 A fascinating exploration into the world of the Saramaka Maroons of the Suriname rain forest. Co-wives and Calabashes examines the status of women in this polygynous and matrilineal society, as reflected in its social structure and in its art. The product of seventeen years of research, the book draws upon a rich variety of resources, from bawdy popular songs to dusty museum artifacts, from animated gossip sessions to comprehensive social statistics, to reveal the complex ways in which notions of gender, patterns of marriage, and the cultural definition of art are interrelated.

God's Country Daniel Holmes Mitchell,1910 The Egyptian Book of the Dead Eva Von Dassow,2008-06-02 Reissue of the legendary 3,500-year-old Papyrus of Ani, the most beautiful of the ornately illustrated Egyptian funerary scrolls ever discovered, restored in its original sequences of text and artwork.

The Standards of Mesopotamia in the Third and Fourth Millennia BCE Renate Marian van Dijk-Coombes,2023-04-05 Depictions of standards form a fundamental part of the visual repertoire of ancient Mesopotamia. These depictions can offer great insight into the thought world of the peoples with which they are associated because different standards were associated with different deities and could be found in multiple contexts. In this book Renate Marian van Dijk Coombes examines the standards which are represented in the visual culture of the third and fourth millennia BCE covering the Uruk Early Dynastic Akkadian and Neo Sumerian periods. She analyses each of the different standards how they looked what they symbolised and the context in which they were found. In addition developments and changes in the representation of these standards are traced across the periods under discussion.

Genesis 1-11 David M. Carr, 2021-01-13 This commentary offers a synthesis of close readings of Genesis 1-11 and up to date study of the formation of these chapters in their ancient Near Eastern context. Each interpretation of these evocative and multilayered narratives is preceded with a new translation with textual and philological commentary and a concise overview of the ways in which each text bears the marks of its shaping over time. This prepares for a close reading that draws on the best of older and newer exegetical insights into these chapters a reading that then connects to feminist queer ecocritical and other contemporary approaches.

The Storm-god in the Ancient Near East Alberto Ravinell Whitney Green, 2003 Green traces these motifs through the Mesopotamian Anatolian Syrian and Levantine regions he argues that in the end Yahweh of the Bible can be identified as a storm god though certain unique characteristics came to be associated with him he was the creator of all that is created and the self existing god who needs no other.
