Urban Ecology Kevin J. Gaston, 2010-09-16
This is the urban century in which for the first time the majority of people live in towns and cities. Understanding how people influence and are influenced by the green component of these environments is therefore of enormous significance. Providing an overview of the essentials of urban ecology, the book begins by covering the vital background concepts of the urbanisation process and the effect that it can have on ecosystem functions and services. Later sections are devoted to examining how species respond to urbanisation, the many facets of human ecology interactions, and the issues surrounding urban planning and the provision of urban green spaces. Drawing on examples from urban settlements around the world, it highlights the progress to date in this burgeoning field as well as the challenges that lie ahead.

Designing Green Spaces for Health Stevie Famulari, 2021-12-12
This book focuses on using plants in spatial design to reduce the infectiousness of viruses in different working and living spaces. It presents strategies for interior and exterior green designs with plants that are likely effective for flu virus tolerance and reduction of infectiousness. The designs are appealing for interaction and healing as well as focusing on the reduction and removal of virus infectiousness. The Famulari Theory requires examining plants that are likely effective for virus accumulation based on their leaves with stomata, trichomes, and dense leaf growth, and transpiration rate, accumulation of airborne viruses. In addition, this research requires reviewing the quantity and specific types of plants as well as electronic sources such as humidifiers and water features needed to produce effective humidity for plants to decrease the infectiousness or transmission of viruses, the effective distance of people to plants, and light, water, soil, and temperature needs. The book addresses the various greening practices that can be applied to sites to reduce the infectiousness of the airborne flu virus, especially in areas such as train stations, restaurants, rooftops, courtyards, office buildings, and work spaces, conference rooms, and the home office, and the ways that businesses, owners, and residents can integrate these practices to reduce the air contaminants with a green solution. Designing green spaces that accumulate, reduce, and remove the infectiousness of viruses involves exploring multiple approaches from different directions to achieve the most effective and ideal design. The six basic approaches include

1 Temperature minimum of 70 Fahrenheit 2 Plants with multiple stomata on the leaf surfaces 3 Plants with multiple clumps of dense leaves with a high transpiration rate 4 Plants with rough leaf surfaces or with trichomes plant hairs on the leaf 5 Relative humidity RH minimum of 43% or higher 6 Air circulation to direct air with the airborne flu virus to the planted areas

Stevie Famulari brings unique insights and inspires the development of green understanding and design solution plans with both short term and long term approaches Illustrations of greening applied to locations help you understand your own design solutions to create them in your site This book breaks down the misconceptions of the complexity of sustainability and green practices and provides illustrations and site appropriate green solutions that you can incorporate into your lifestyle for a healthier site Greening is a lifestyle change and this guide lets you know how easy it is to transition to the green side to improve your health
