

Contentment

In this module you are going to practice a form of meditation called conscious contentment. The instructions for this practice are to sit quietly and allow yourself to be content with whatever happens to be having. Your experience will continually shift between being content, then frightened, then frustrated, then happy, then frightened, then frustrated, then happy.

No matter what your experience is, the practice is to be content with it. You sit in conscious contentment and you don't react to anything that arises.

I have written in more detail about this practice in my book The Art of Conscious Contentment. If you want more information you can download a free copy of the book at www.emergenceeducation.com/the-art-of-conscious-contentment.

Each day of this module you will be practicing the practice of conscious contentment for twenty minutes paying particular attention to the aspects of your experience.
