Growing Pains Environmental Management In Developing Countries:

Growing Pains Jacob Mulugetta, Walter Wehrmeyer, 1999 An examination of environmental management in the south from a number of perspectives It is designed to stimulate the discussion about the role that corporations and national and international organizations play in sustainable development International Environmental Law and Asian Values Roda Mushkat, 2004 Following decades of vigorous economic expansion Asia is confronting the environmental consequences of unfettered development This poses a challenge because of the strong bias of prevailing cultural systems in the region toward the goal of lifting standards of living over achieving ecological sustainability This book juxtaposes international environmental norms and practices with relevant Asian policies and their applications in key areas Roda Mushkat examines the fundamental principle of public participation in environmental law making as well as the rights approach against the emergence of democratic and human rights norms in the region The complex relationship between trade and the environment is also discussed in light of the strong regional emphasis on economic growth trade liberalization and the aversion to conditionalities Given regionalization processes in Asia Pacific and elsewhere this work seeks to establish to what extent such processes have led to the regionalization of international environmental law International Environmental Law and Asian Values concludes that although some gaps can be identified between international imperatives and regional responses Asian values have not proved to be an insurmountable barrier to the spread of international environmental legal ideas On the whole the region is responding to impulses emanating from the global arena rather than resisting them consciously The analysis and conclusions of this comprehensive and original work will be of considerable interest to scholars of international law and relations environmental policy comparative culture economic development and social change

Hydropolitics in the Developing World Anthony Turton, Roland Henwood, 2002 Bringing contributions by a variety of authors together in one volume is part of an attempt to show that hydropolitics is a growing discipline in its own right The prevailing definition of hydropolitics is widened to include the elements of scale and range This is illustrated through a focus on theoretical and legal issues case studies from Southern Africa and a proposed research agenda The book is an important addition to the literature on hydropolitics The First Decade of NAFTA: The Future of Free Trade in North America Kevin Kennedy, 2021-10-25 This volume provides practitioners academics and students with the first definitive coverage of NAFTA investment arbitration Given the level of foreign direct investment within the NAFTA countries the issue of redress for states in investment cases is a major one The state dispute settlement mechanisms within NAFTAs Chapter Eleven are recognized as a model worthy of close examination The experts and scholars who have contributed to this work present a comprehensive overview of the first ten years of practice in the area of investment disputes under the NAFTA provision As in any nascent undertaking the successes failures and controversies that have been the experience of the state parties involved in NAFTA are keenly reflected in the Chapter 11 cases It is in these experiences as described by in the chapters of this timely volume that the readers will find substantive and procedural insights into an emerging new area of public international economic law Many see the workings of the NAFTA agreement particularly Chapter 11 as a Rorschach test for how state parties can approach and effectively adjudicate investment disputes For this reason all practitioners and scholars concerned with international trade and foreign direct investment issues should consult this book Published under the Transnational Publishers imprint

International Investment for Sustainable Development Lyuba Zarsky,2005 First Published in 2004 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

Voluntary Environmental Programs Peter DeLeon,Jorge E. Rivera,2010-01-01 Voluntary Environmental Programs pose a means by which industry government and other interested groups can cooperatively agree upon socially acceptable restraints Rather than relying on complete government control of environmental laws Voluntary Environmental Programs rely on a voluntary system for businesses They pose their unique problems predicated on the effectiveness of voluntary self constraint

The Greening of Business in Developing Countries Peter Utting,2002 If sustainable development is to become a reality then transnational corporations must take their environmental responsibilities seriously In the industrialised countries some positive steps have been taken The rhetoric of corporate environmental responsibility is also extending to developing countries but very little is known about the extent of concrete changes there in the environmental performance of big business This book explores what is happening in the developing world Three principal questions are focused upon To what extent is the greening of business a reality in the South If large corporations are pursuing their business interests in an environmentally responsible manner does this contribute significantly to sustainable development What combination of measures is likely to work in scaling up and deepening environmental good practice by companies in developing countries The original research contained in this volume spans a number of major sectors manufacturing oil extraction logging and bioprospecting Particular attention is paid to the experience of Brazil Costa Rica Malaysia Mexico Singapore and South Africa Corporate self regulation environmental reporting and voluntary codes of conduct are examined In addition there are detailed studies of the complementary approaches that are necessary including the regulatory measures and incentives which governments can put in place and the increasingly well publicised role which citizens movements and NGOs are playing in holding business to account for its environmental impact This pioneering set of studies not only provides a rich seam of hard data on the environmental record of big business in the South but even more importantly it examines the strengths and weaknesses of a wide range of environmental policies and contexts including the frequently contradictory pressures of the market place and public campaigns which impact on corporations in this critically important arena

Tools for Environmental Management Dixon Thompson,2002 Thompson environmental science U of Calgary gathers 14 contributors from the academic and business sectors in this text for students professionals policy makers and regulators This book is not about managing the environment but about managing people in organizations governments and corporations to lessen environmental damage

Topics include auditing education and training environmental reporting impact assessment and the Natural Step a Swedish NGO that advises on efficient material usage to increase profits and spare the environment Pub desc Environment & Planning ,2004 Technologie, Entreprise Et Société ,2001 The Journal of Environment & Development ,2000

Grassroots Struggles for Sustainability in Central America Lynn Horton,2007 In recent years sustainable development has emerged as a central goal of the World Bank and grassroots activists alike In Grassroots Struggles for Sustainability in Central America Lynn R Horton explores the implications of this new often contested discourse and related policies for Central America s rural and indigenous poor Drawing on the testimony of leaders and residents of three communities in Nicaragua Costa Rica and Panama Horton explores grassroots assumptions values and practices of sustainable development and in particular the ways in which they overlap with or challenge international financial institutions discourse of sustainability With a comparative empirical approach Horton also analyzes dominant practices linked to sustainable development neoliberal reforms project interventions and environmental protection She reveals how these practices support or undermine economic cultural and political opportunities for the rural and indigenous poor and impact these communities advancement of their own visions of sustainability Finally the author explores processes of empowerment that enable communities to articulate and put into practice local visions of sustainability which contribute toward broader social and structural transformations Grassroots Struggles for Sustainability in Central America will interest sociologists anthropologists and others who study the theory and practice of sustainable development Indigenous Knowledge & Development Monitor ,2000 The Urban Age ,1998 Organizations and the Sustainability Mosaic Sanjay Sharma,Mark Starik,Bryan Husted,2007 Transportation planning deals with the ways in which governments at various levels try to ensure the effective and efficient movement of people and goods For this collection the editors have selected the key previously published papers which analyse some of the major methodological issues involved in modern transportation planning and discuss the main policy questions and debates The wide range of topics covered includes traffic assignment developments in modelling travel behaviour urban travel the effect of modern telecommunications on travel congestion and pricing policy The book inc Environmental Information in Developing Nations Anna Da Soledada Vieira,1985-07-23 Vieira focuses on the relationship between environmental pollution and socioeconomic underdevelopment and emphasizes the role information can play in the protection of the Third World environment She identifies the main governmental and nongovernmental institutions related to important aspects of the Third World environment pollution control sanitation public health and development and alternative technologies The Brazilian institutional panorama is analyzed and then compared with Mexican Indian and Egyptian systems in an effort to identify common points that might be applied to the Third World as a whole Finally she recommends the establishment of an informal international network of both nongovernmental institutions and individuals for the exchange of information considered important to the developing countries or pertinent to the environmental realities of the Third World Providing the core for such a network is an appendix listing organizations interested in the environment and development of the Third World Diversity at Stake Peter R. W. Gerritsen,2002* Finally in the Epilogue an attempt is made to translate the theoretical empirical discussions of Chapters 1 to 7 into 10 practical recommendations for policy makers and practitioners Annual Transportation Convention ,1994
