Evaluating Training Sharon Bartram,Brenda Gibson,1999 Training without evaluation is like travelling without a destination Today s trainers need to demonstrate that what they are doing produces a benefit to the organization that employs them Sharon Bartram and Brenda Gibson authors of the highly successful Training Needs Analysis have turned their attention to the equally important issue of evaluation They maintain that by measuring both the results of the learning that takes place and its effect on individuals departments and organizations trainers can help people to change their everyday behaviour And the more you evaluate the closer you come to creating an environment where learning is a natural part of everyone s routine This manual provides a variety of tools and techniques for measuring results Part One introduces the idea of the evaluation audit It examines factors such as organizational culture readiness for learning and evaluation strategy and shows how to assess current practice and how to plan for the future Part Two contains 24 instruments for measuring training effectiveness and the impact of training at various levels They are designed to help you answer two key questions What have people learned and What difference has their learning made to them to their department and to the organization The forms in Part Two can be copied for immediate use or adapted to suit the needs of your own organization Evaluating Training can be used as a means of personal development for trainers to establish a systematic approach to training evaluation as a basis for reviewing whatever evaluation you already undertake Whether you are new to evaluation or an old hand you will find much to help you here   Description and Evaluation of a New Training Plan for Title Setting Apprentices John Wiley Curtis,1929
