Feminist Science Education Angela Calabrese Barton, 1998 This volume presents a case for liberatory science education from a feminist perspective Based on a two year teacher research study Feminist Science Education questions and challenges how power and knowledge relationships position teachers students and science with and against one another in the classroom Using stories about life in and out of the classroom this book describes the impact that exploring this situated nature of science and teaching has for transforming science education

Feminist Science Education Angela Calabrese Barton, 1998 Re-visioning Science Education from Feminist Perspectives, 2010-01-01 Women in science education are placed in a juxtaposition of gender roles and gendered career roles Using auto biography and auto ethnography this book examines the challenges and choices of academic women in science education and how those challenges have changed or remained consistent since women have become a presence in science education The book s contributors span a temporal and spatial continuum and focus on how a variety of issues relate to the paradoxes for academic women in science education Science is characterized as a masculine endeavor while teaching is described as women s true profession Thus female academics involved in science education are positioned in two paradoxes First as teachers they are involved in a feminized profession However within that profession women faculty in science education work in a discipline viewed as a masculine enterprise Further these women work in educational institutions that have higher status and prestige than their sisters in elementary middle or high schools Second female professors are bearded mothers Women who have engaged in science education value rationality and logic and assume authority as participants in academe The use of logic the acceptance of authority and the assumption of power are masculine gender stereotyped characteristics This situation places women in a paradox because others including peers and students expect them to display stereotypic female gender dispositions such as mothering nurturing sacrificing their needs for others and a commitment to the institution The topics include discussing how their engagement with science impacted their career trajectories and re direction from science to science education the relationships of cultural and racial factors on career trajectories and the dialectical relationship between women s private public lives and their agency collective and individual in the academy and its enactment within academic fields The book documents the lives and careers of academic women in science education from the United States Australia the Caribbean United Kingdom and Europe
