The Youth Sports Crisis Steven J. Overman, 2014-10-14 This provocative critique of the youth sports movement examines the various issues surrounding children in sports and provides a plan for reform based on a change in philosophy and practice Many American children spend more than 20 hours a week in organized sports forgoing free time and unstructured recreational activities for the rigors of training and competition This book offers a comprehensive critique of the youth sports movement pitting the reality of adult run sports programs against the needs and interests of children It examines whether the tradeoff of normal play time for structured sports activities teaches discipline and leads to stronger character development or if the pressures of the game the physical strain of practicing and the general overscheduling of children s lives have eroded the benefits associated with playing sports Educator and former coach Steven J Overman contends that youth based sports programs require a radical change for the well being of the young participants The book explores the various problems in organized sports including stress on the family physical health hazards violence emotional duress elitism and hyper competitiveness Incorporating the perspectives of coaches athletes parents physicians and social scientists the narrative scrutinizes the role of adults as promoters and coaches and concludes with a discussion of current and needed reforms Mind and Body, 1901 The Cliftonian Clifton College (Bristol, England), 1885 You Could Drive a Person Crazy Scott Miller, 2002 For years conventional wisdom has held that theatre companies have to produce brainless well known flashy shows to make money and stay afloat But one regional theatre company out in the middle of America has been proving since 1991 that conventional wisdom is wrong New Line Theatre consistently challenges its audiences taking them on wild intense roller coaster rides assaulting them with issues challenging them with complex characters and themes demanding that audiences not remain passive sometimes producing shows very few people have heard of daring to be controversial aggressive confrontational And not only has New Line survived its first ten years it is sailing into its next ten years as healthy and as heartily supported by its public as ever New Line Theatre has once and for all shattered the myth that audiences only like what they know that audiences don't like to think when they come to the theatre that television has made us all into passive couch potatoes On the contrary New Line has proven that audiences even those in the supposedly conservative Midwest love to be challenged shaken up confronted involved This is New Line's story
