

Learning About the Environment

First Nations Australians can get everything they need from the environment in two. Plants and animals can be used for food, medicine, clothing, tools and shelter.

Sharing and Teaching

Every First Nations Australian language group is special and knows different information about their Country and Place.

Our family knows how to find water in the roots of certain bushy trees. This is helpful if there isn't a lot of water around.

What is the name of your local First Nations Australian language group?
