the green revolution and the subsistence agricultural systems of the world Forty four experts from entomology plant pathology environmental science agronomy anthropology economics and extension education from Africa Asia Australia Europe North America and South America have discussed impact of IPM with an interdisciplinary perspective Each one of the experts is an authority in his or her field of expertise The researchers farmers education supporting policies of the governments and market forces are the elements of the IPM innovation system to achieve wider adoption of IPM strategy in agriculture

Guideline to promote integrated pest management through Farmer Field Schools in smallholder agriculture in Ethiopia Mulatu, B. , 2024-12-09 Plant protection in Ethiopia formally began in the 1940s with focus on promoting use of pesticides To this date the pest control measure with wider acceptance has been the use of second generation synthetic organic pesticides The most used are the highly hazardous pesticides which have the reputation of posing serious risk to health and the environment In Ethiopia the total area under crops production is well over 13 million hectares On the other hand the quantities of pesticides available every year have not been enough even to protect crops grown in 1 million hectares Despite this there has been rampant misuse of pesticides affecting health and the environment Moreover the attainable yield remained low with substantial yield losses incurred every year due to pest damage This indicates clearly that the increase in yield gain remained low Thus promoting IPM through FFS was thought to be the means for growing healthy crops with high yield sustainably manage economic pests reduce pesticide use and protect health and the environment It was based on this that FAO promoted IPM through the FFS approach and achieved the following outputs enhanced human and institutional capacity for promoting IPM in smallholder fields established and capacitated IPM FFS groups who successfully reduced economic damage by pests generated scalable outputs conducted experience sharing events on the outputs and reached more smallholder farmers Therefore using the scaled out outputs as empirical data this guideline to promote IPM through FFS in the smallholders farmers was developed to create wider awareness and further implementation

The Economics of Integrated Pest Management of Insects

David W Onstad, Philip Crain, 2019-09-02 The book begins by establishing an economic framework upon which to apply the principles of IPM Then it looks at the entomological applications of economics specifically economic analyses concerning chemical biological cultural and genetic control tactics as well as host plant resistance and the cost of sampling Lastly it evaluates whether the control provided by a traditional IPM system is sufficient or if changes to the system design would yield greater benefits

Integrated Pest Management of Tropical Vegetable Crops Rangaswamy Muniappan, E. A.

Heinrichs, 2016-11-23 It is an edited book with chapters written by multi disciplinary specialists in their specific subject areas It covers development of IPM components and packaging them for individual vegetable crops specifically targeted to tropical countries Scientific background for IPM components or tactics will be included There will be case studies of IPM packages developed and implemented in different countries The concept of IPM has been in existence for the past six decades however a practical holistic program has not been developed and implemented for vegetable crops in the developing countries

Currently the IPM adoption rate in the tropics is minimal and there is a need for implementation of IPM technologies that are environmentally safe economical and socially acceptable We believe that adoption and implementation of IPM provided in this book will lead to significant reduction in crop losses and mitigate adverse impacts of pesticide use in the tropics This book is an outcome 20 years of research development and implementation of the IPM CRSP a project supported by USAID and administered by Virginia Tech in several developing countries along the tropical belt in Africa Asia Latin America and the Caribbean
