Globalization in English Studies Maria Giorgieva, Allan James, 2010-02-19 Globalization the concept used to account for the multitude of linkages interconnections and interdependences that currently transcend territorial and sociocultural boundaries in the world has been in the centre of continual controversy over its meaning scope intensity and social significance for post modern societies However whether considered from the narrow angle of current socio economic developments or from the broad perspective of evolutionary processes straddling all spheres of life globalization is generally acknowledged to refer to a complex set of processes of modernization technologization liberalization and integration operationalized through language and in a language shared by all those involved For a number of geo historical socio political economic and technological reasons the language that has firmly established itself as the language of international communication is English As a result Global English takes a primary place in discussions of the effect of globalization on world societies and culture The volume Globalization in English Studies addresses the issue of how globalization impacts upon culture literature language communication and language learning and use policies which are taken to constitute the multiplex disciplinary space of English Studies Written by authors with different language cultural and theoretical backgrounds this collection of eleven chapters throws light on how global and local entities are subtly intertwined refashioned and rescaled in different geo political and sociocultural contexts The book is divided into four parts The first part Globalization in Culture dwells upon the effects of globalization in particular cultural domains and the institutional attempts in some countries at reducing its negative consequences for local practices The second part Globalization in Literature examines the impact of global integration processes on social life In particular it focuses on new developments as the hybridization and technologization of societies that tend to wipe out borders traditionally taken as reference points in building identity and a sense of belonging The third part Globalization in Language Communication focuses on intercultural communication and the opportunities different multi modal settings offer for the the realisation of intertextuality and interdiscursivity Of particular interest is how local people select appropriate and creatively utilize cultural entities designed for global consumption to make them appear as their own The last part Global English and English

Language Teaching Learning Policy approaches the issue from a pedagogical perspective and examines the changes that globalization has caused for learners learning environments and ways of speaking Ranging over a variety of domains subsumed within English Studies this collection of studies can serve as a good base for the cross disciplinary synergy of ideas and fruitful debate among scholars and practitioners with a vested interest in Global English

The Sociology of the Economy Frank Dobbin, 2004-02-12 The new economic sociology is based on the theory that patterns of economic behavior are shaped by social factors The Sociology of the Economy brings together a dozen path breaking empirical studies that explore how social forces such as shifts in political power the influence of social networks or the spread of new economic ideas shape real world economic behavior The contributors all leading economic sociologists show these social forces at work in a diverse range of international settings and historical circumstances Examining why so many American banks followed industry leaders into foreign markets in the 1970s only to pull back within a few years Mark Mizruchi and Gerald Davis suggest that social emulation rather than rational calculation led banks to expand globally before there was any evidence that foreign offices paid off William Schaner and Mauro Guill show that despite the international diffusion of the hostile takeover during the last twenty years the practice became widespread only in countries with political institutions conducive to buying and selling entire companies Thus during the 1990s the United States and United Kingdom saw hundreds of hostile takeover bids while Germany had only a handful and Japan just one Deborah Davis explores resistance to the globalization of Western ideas about real estate ownership particularly in China where the government has had little success in instituting a market system in place of traditional family based real estate inheritance And Richard Scott examines the controversial rise of managed care in the American healthcare system as the quest for market efficiency collided with the ideal of equity in access to health care Together these studies provide compelling evidence that economic behavior is not ruled by immutable laws and is but one realm of social behavior with its own conventions roles and social structures The Sociology of the Economy demonstrates the vitality of empirical research in the field of economic sociology and the power of sociological models in explaining how markets operate Global Business Strategy Asterios G. World Link ,1994 Global Rhythm ,2005 Globalism Manfred B. Steger,2002 Globalism The New Market Ideology rejects the notion that we find ourselves at the end of ideology and that democracy has won Instead Steger argues that the opening decade of the 21st century will constitute a teeming battlefield of clashing ideologies The chief protagonist is the dominant neoliberal market ideology Steger calls globalism After identifying and evaluating the five central claims of globalism including assertions that globalization is inevitable nobody is in charge of globalization and globalization benefits everyone Steger offers an overview of the counterclaims made by anti globalist forces Visit our website for sample chapters

Agents of Power J. Herbert Altschull,1984 Global Telecommunication Networks: Strategic Considerations George Muskens,Jacob Gruppelaar,1988-02-29 The Social Contract ,1991 Negotiations of the "new World" Sabine Selchow,2017 In this book I develop the argument that the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global is more than a linguistic curiosity I argue it is a political phenomenon and as such a valuable albeit unconventional object of study for scholars outside the linguistics discourse I argue that the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global constitutes the discursive reproduction of a web of meanings that is best labelled new world As such the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global constitutes a distinct dimension of the enduring contestation over the construction of the world Given the word's current popularity and unscrutinised existence as well as the loaded nature of the web of meanings new world that it brings out I argue this dimension is not just a minor matter but plays an important hence research worthy role in the contemporary symbolic struggle over the world My conceptualisation of the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global as the re production of a web of meanings new world is grounded in two central insights that arise from my empirical engagement with the adjective global. The first of these two insights is the empirically grounded understanding that the contemporary adjective global is closely enmeshed with the talk about different ideas associated with the word globalisation. I call this talk globalisation discourse. As I demonstrate, the contemporary adjective global has come to be used in the sense of outcome of globalisation. This makes the adjective a new word. What is new about the contemporary global, I argue, is that it implies ideas that are associated with the word globalisation. I develop my argument that the contemporary adjective global is best taken as a new word by building on relevant discussions among lexicographers about when a word is appropriately called new as well as by drawing on a theory of language and meaning according to which language and meaning are not natural and referential but conventional and productive. The second central insight that arises from my empirical engagement with the contemporary global and that underlies my conceptualisation of the omnipresence of global as the re production of a web of meanings new world refers to the word globalisation. It is the insight that all utterances which contain the word globalisation can be seen as constituting a discursive production of an object that is best labelled new world. In other words, my conceptualisation of the omnipresence of global builds on my understanding that what all uses of the word globalisation have in common despite and in addition to the myriad of meanings that are associated with this word in whichever context it is used is that they imply the proclamation of a new world that came. This insight makes what I call globalisation discourse different from existing conceptualisations under this label such as the one by Hay and Smith 2005. Normally, the globalisation discourse is conceptualised based on a scholarly preconception of what the word globalisation refers to such as market integration or the spread of neoliberalism. In contrast, my suggestion that we understand the uses of the word globalisation as a discursive production of a web of meanings that is best called new world is grounded in an approach that takes the polysemy of the word globalisation seriously. In addition, it builds on an elaboration of the question how and when the concept s globalisation and the neologism globalisation came to be in the true Foucault 1981: 61, i.e. became socially accepted and normal tools to grasp the world. As I discuss in this book, developments which have come to be addressed with the word globalisation existed before this neologism became popular at the end of the 1980s and in the course of the 1990s. Given that meaning is not inherent in social reality but conventional, the question arises why a new word was perceived to be needed and accepted at the end of the 1980s and 1990s, i.e. at that particular moment in time. My answer to this question is that this was because the end of the Cold War was perceived to have brought out a new world for which existing conceptual tools were perceived to be inadequate. This new world was perceived as having produced a conceptual vacuum. This is apparent in assessments such as that of IR theorist James N. Rosenau 1990: 5, who argued after the end of the Cold War that observers were left without any paradigms or theories that adequately explain the course of events. I argue it was this perceived vacuum that opened the discursive door and let the concept s globalisation and the neologism globalisation step in to fill it Consequently the use of the word globalisation can be conceptualised as re producing and filling the conceptual space new world with meaning It is the synthesis of these two insights that allows me to conceptualise the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global as a distinct phenomenon namely as a discursive re production of a web of meanings called new world This phenomenon I argue in this book is relevant and interesting in two respects The New World and International Information Order John A.
