Globalization and the Developing Economies Aditya Bhattacharjea, Sugata Marjit, 2004 Universities in developing countries often face severe resource constraints making it difficult for them to stock their libraries with the latest books and journals and to attract and retain faculty who are abreast of current trends in research In order to meet this perceived gap the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization UNESCO funded a conference at the Centre for Studies in Social Sciences in Calcutta at which papers were presented by specialists on various aspects of development This volume comprises substantially updated and revised versions of those papers in which the authors show how recent theoretical techniques and statistical analyses can illuminate a wide range of important issues in developing countries The volume begins with case studies of economic reforms in Russia Korea and Malaysia each in its own way an example of what can go wrong with simplistic prescriptions advocating either free markets or controls independent of the institutional context These chapters lead into models of exchange rate behaviour and balance of payments crises and area of contemporary concern Other chapters examine recent theoretical treatments of international trade in relation to cumulative patterns of development and underdevelopment international labour mobility and remittances Two largely statistical chapters come up with findings that contribute new and disturbing insights to two long running debates one on the deterioration of developing countries terms of trade and the other on the weak link between incomes and nutrition in India A final chapter reviews various analytical perspectives on the family and fertility in developing countries Apart from acquainting readers with recent techniques and trends the essays also point to possible directions for future research The book should thus be of interest to teachers and students of economics and development Published in association with Centre for Social Science Studies Calcutta

Globalization and Development Jose Antonio Ocampo, Juan Martin, 2003-09-29 Award winning title Globalization and Development was selected as a 2003 Notable Government Document by the American Librarian Association ALA and GODORT Government Documents Round Table In this book the UNECLAC United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean draws upon the Latin American and Caribbean region's experience in order to formulate a historical and multidimensional assessment of the globalization process from the perspectives of developing countries Globalization and Development Don Kalb, Wil Pansters, Hans Siebers, 2004-06-24

This book is a collective effort by researchers affiliated with the CERES Research School in Development Studies in the Netherlands. These experts discuss themes and concepts crucial to the overlapping fields of globalization and development research. Individual chapters examine the notions and issues of globalization, livelihood, identity, governance, transnationalism, and knowledge. Globalization and Challenges for Development in Tanzania Lucian A. Msambichaka, N. E. A. Mwamba, Oswald Mashindano, 2006 Globalization, Development and The State Jørgen Dige Pedersen, 2008-08
This book presents the story of how India and Brazil have managed the challenges of economic globalization since 1990. Using an innovative combination of theories of developmental states with theories on the changing nature of global capitalism, the analysis presented here explains how India and Brazil have successfully managed those challenges that the opening of their economies has introduced and their different degrees of success. The key to their economic performance lies in the establishment of new and more intensive forms of business-state collaboration which ensures that policy initiatives have progressively been adapted to the interests and capabilities of the domestic business class. The analysis points to a new theoretical perspective on developmental states. In an increasingly knowledge-intensive global economy, developmental states acquire new forms that are more collaborative and democratic in contrast to earlier authoritarian states. They also need strong inputs of an intellectual nature, making authoritarian solutions less likely to succeed. Book cover China's Economic Reform and Development during the 13th Five-Year Plan Period Gang Lin, Yiming Wang, Xiaohe Ma, Debu Gao, 2020-09-23
Five Year Plans have been a cornerstone of Chinese social and economic development initiatives since 1953. During the thirteenth of these periods, between 2016 and 2020, the global economy has experienced instability after the financial crisis as well as political and economic reconfiguration. Drawing on modern economic theory, this book comprehensively discusses China's economic development in this crucial phase. The book analyzes the international economic environment and asks how China's continued reform and opening up can fit with the new era of economic globalization. It also presents the difficulties China faces in such fields as urbanization, the coordination of regional development and urban-rural integration, economic reform, and the reform of factor markets and state-owned enterprises. The book outlines many medium-term development rules along with key characteristics of China's economy, helping international readers fully understand likely future trajectories for the Chinese economy. From Modernization to Globalization J. Timmons Roberts, Amy Bellone Hite, 2000-01-12
From Modernization to Globalization is a reference for scholars, students, and development practitioners on the issues of processes of social change and development in the Third World. It provides carefully excerpted samples from both classic and up-to-date writings in the development literature, short insightful introductions to each section, and a general introduction.
