The Dictionary of Developmental and Educational Psychology Rom Harré, Roger Lamb, 1986 In exploring the areas of socialization and the cognitive and emotional growth of children, this dictionary considers controversial issues such as IQ and the role of genetic inheritance and early experience in the growth of intelligence and in social and emotional development into adulthood. The roles of influential theorists are assessed and issues relating specifically to formal education are examined. The Dictionary of Developmental and Educational Psychology is one of four dictionaries based on the Encyclopedic Dictionary of Psychology published by The MIT Press in 1983 and cited by American Libraries as an outstanding reference source that speaks to the specialist and nonspecialist alike. They update existing articles while offering many new entries.

Rom Narreacute is a Lecturer in the Philosophy of Science at Oxford University and an Adjunct Professor of Social and Behavioral Sciences at the State University of New York at Binghamton. Roger Lamb is a research worker in the Department of Social Psychology at Oxford University.

Impossible Jobs in Public Management Erwin C. Hargrove, John C. Glidewell, 1990 If you think your job is hopelessly difficult, you may be right. Particularly if your job is public administration. Those who study or practice public management know full well the difficulties faced by administrators of complex bureaucratic systems. What they don't know is why some jobs in the public sector are harder than others and how good managers cope with those jobs. Drawing on leadership theory and social psychology, Erwin Hargrove and John Glidewell provide the first systematic analysis of the factors that determine the inherent difficulty of public management jobs and of the coping strategies employed by successful managers. To test their argument, Hargrove and Glidewell focus on those jobs fraught with extreme difficulties: impossible jobs. What differentiates impossible from possible jobs are:

1. the publicly perceived legitimacy of the commissioner's clientele
2. the intensity of the conflict among the agency's constituencies
3. the public's confidence in the authority of the commissioner's profession
4. the strength of the agency's myth or long-term idealistic goal

Hargrove and Glidewell flesh out their analysis with six case studies that focus on the roles played by leaders of specific agencies. Each essay summarizes the institutional strengths and weaknesses, specifies what makes the job impossible, and then compares the skills and strategies that incumbents have employed in coping with such jobs. Readers will come away with a thorough understanding of the conflicting social, psychological, and political forces that act on commissioners in impossible jobs.

Behavior Modification William L. Mikulas, 1978 Ce document propose un portrait du champ de compétence que représente la

modification du comportement en incluant son application dans le milieu scolaire les ressources résidentielles le milieu familial le milieu de travail et les ressources institutionnelles Il aborde alors les principes fondamentaux de l'approche behaviorale tout comme les interrelations de celle-ci avec d'autres approches différentes Il est alors question de l'évaluation et de la mise en place des objectifs de comportement du conditionnement des techniques aversives et du développement cognitif

Behavior Modification in a Rehabilitation Facility Richard M. Sanders, 1975 This succinct and easily understandable guide to sheltered training practices exhibits methods and techniques for use with a variety of problems in any rehabilitation workshop or activity center A practical work the book reports research and provides models which can be integrated easily into almost any program regardless of clients staff behavioral problems or training objectives All the techniques and equipment described by Sanders can be put to use easily and inexpensively and each training project can be applied immediately to a wide variety of sheltered workshop problems A contribution to rehabilitation and rehabilitation psychology an increasingly important segment of the helping professions this practical guide thus offers a solid base for developing an approach which will help sheltered workshops to become more effective tools for rehabilitating the estimated more than five million handicapped persons in this country

Biological Contributions to Crime Causation T.E. Moffitt, Sarnoff A. Mednick, 1988-02-29 This book presents reviews of the literature and reports of new findings from research into biological correlates of criminal behavior The chapters are revised versions of talks given by participants in an Advanced Study Institute sponsored by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and held in Castelvecchio Pascoli in September 1986 It is our second edited volume on biology and crime The first book The Causes of Crime: New Biological Approaches was published in 1987 In the preface to that book we described the regrettable history of the pseudobiological research into social problems conducted by the Social Darwinists at the turn of the century We requested that that unfortunate legacy not inhibit responsible and scientifically sound investigations of biological and psychological variables in criminology today Evidence is mounting that shows that research limited to social and environmental variables cannot explain the behavior of the minority of criminal offenders whose criminal careers begin in adolescence and develop into recidivistic and violent assaults on society Certainly these offenders are few but epidemiological studies have found them to be responsible for an amount of crimes disproportionate to their small numbers As few 5% of males commit over 50% of criminal offenses Intervention directed at these relatively few individuals could if successful dramatically reduce our growing violent crime rate The chapters in our earlier book showed that some biological variables do relate to this type of chronic offending
