Important OSHA Standards Contributing to Fewer Workplace Accidents

Standard 1910.132: Personal Protective Equipment: Protective equipment, including clothing, helmets, goggles and other eye protection, must be used when process or environment presents hazards that could cause bodily harm.

Standard 1910.147: Lock Out-Tag Out: Before any servicing or maintenance on a piece of machinery, the energy source must be isolated and the stored energy released or dissipated. This standard is one of the "Big Six" OSHA standards that have saved the most lives.

Standard 1910.119: Process Safety Management (PSM): PSM is a set of practices designed to prevent a major unplanned release of a highly hazardous chemical into a workplace. OSHA estimates that more than 10,000 people are injured each year because of PSM violations.

OSHA Inspections: OSHA inspectors conduct workplace safety inspections to ensure that employers are following OSHA safety standards. Inspections are conducted with employers, employees, and safety representatives. OSHA inspectors are trained in the use of 286 OSHA standards, which are organized into 10 categories, and are required to complete a written report for each inspection.
