Web Pages 101

Learn to create your own website in this intermediate IT course, we will learn basic HTML (the markup language used to build websites) to create a simple webpage and use Weebly to build a web-designed and easy to use personal website.

Extended computer/technical skills, an email address and 600 of online experience are required.

What we'll cover in today's course

This course will be divided into two sections:

- 1. HTML 101
We'll cover the basics of creating a very simple webpage. After this course, you will understand what goes on behind your web browser, and with some practice, be able to build future webpages from scratch.
- 2. Weebly 101
We'll go over the options and tools in Weebly.com, an easy-to-use drag-and-drop web application that does all the HTML coding for you! This free web application will let us create a professional-looking personal website. You don't know have to know HTML (but a basic understanding is helpful) or how to code, as we'll use the individual building blocks to create a website.
